In remote Papua New Guinea, the difference between life and death can come down to something as simple as fuel. When emergencies happen, Samaritan Aviation flies the only floatplane ambulance in the country, landing on rivers to reach patients and turning days of travel into about a one-hour flight to the hospital. Every mission delivers more than care. It brings prayer, compassion, and the hope of the Gospel, completely free of charge. But none of it happens without fuel. Through the Fuel for Life campaign, your gift directly powers these rescues. $130 can fuel one life-saving flight, and $650 provides a full drum for multiple missions. Give today at samaritanaviation.org/fuel-for-life and help ensure that when the call comes, they are ready to go.
